Unlike the Low Voltage fans we looked at, there is little that is subtle about these fans. Even a quick glance at their specification sheet is enough to set them apart from most fans. 50% thicker, 6000rpm, >250cfm of airflow, PWM control? Nice!

For those who aren't familiar with Jou Jye Computer, here's a little blurb taken from their website.

"Established in 1997, Jou Jye Computer quickly gained a very good reputation in the IT component industry for supplying excellent products and meeting even the highest customer demands.

Focusing its product offerings on power supply units for computer applications has proven to be a substantial strength."

We'll be mounting these fans on our Thermalright heatsink. Let's see if these high power "Twin Turbo" fans really live up to its name. There is one concern which I think is pretty important, and that's the noise level ... in the past, my experience with high power fans have always been noisy! Can Jou Jye do any better ... let's find out.
